Welcome by the EURAM President

Dear Colleagues and Friends,

Welcome to Paris and the 16th EURAM Annual Conference!

Paris Est - Créteil University is ready to host you and provides an ideal setting to debate current management research topics. An attractive academic and social programme has been put together by Julienne Brabet and her fantastic team. Some of you are already aware that my presidential term is coming to a close at this conference - and now, the end is near...

Don’t worry, I’m not about to sing a ‘swan song’ in front of you -- but before I bow out of my final show as President of EURAM, I thought I’d take this opportunity to say a few words and share some thoughts with you. (You may notice that I have borrowed heavily from Frank Sinatra’s signature song “My Way” - for which I’d like to both apologise and acknowledge in advance…)

For the last 6 years, I have proudly been part of the team that acts as the Custodians of EURAM, an Association where there are no premium Members but rather Members adhering to a common objective: to facilitate management education and research through Mutual Recognition.

I feel privileged to have had the opportunity to serve the EURAM Community - a Community of European Engaged Scholars.

I know this Academy well, and I care deeply about its future success. I leave the Presidency knowing that EURAM’s values are well intact and evolving steadily towards improvement.

Regrets I have few -- but then again, I did what I had to do, and saw things through without exemption…

I am enormously proud of the work we have done together and I want to thank you, the many individuals whose goodwill, shared vision, and contributions made it all possible.

And may I say (not in a shy way): I am confident that the work we’ve done thus far will serve EURAM in good stead for many years ahead.

I’m committed to my duties as Past President for the year ahead, until the next EURAM Annual Conference, and look forward to working with you in the coming months on an effective leadership transition. I wish my successor, Sibel Yamak, the very best.

EURAM can only operate thanks to a large pool of volunteers of whom the Board Members, SIG Chairs and Officers, Track Chairs and Reviewers, all play a key role. I can only thank them collectively here, but hope to meet many of them during the conference to acknowledge their unique contribution to the organisation.
Last but certainly not least, many thanks to all the Executive Committee Members: Sibel Yamak, Wojciech Czakon, Hans Lundberg, Silke Machold, Anne-Katrin Neyer, Julienne Brabet, Corinne Vercher, Mustafa Özbilgin, and Luisa Jaffé, who have helped me sail smoothly through my years of presidency.

Whatever major challenges may lie ahead, I hope that the future EURAM will remain the pivotal point of reference as the unique European Academy of Management Scholars, yet one that truly facilitates research collaboration and hybridisation, and remains invaluable across countries in developing management education.

My dear international colleagues and friends, ask not what EURAM can do for you - but what you can do for EURAM! Together, YOU and EURAM can build a better and more efficient world in your chosen field of research and education.

And so, as I face the final curtain, I’ll state the case, of which I’m certain: as one of the Custodians of EURAM, I’ve lived a life that’s full - and more, much more than this, I did it my way…

Of course, I realise Frank Sinatra’s “My Way” could well be one of the most popular songs for a sad occasion - but I assure you I am actually very happy, and view this as a joyful moment where we can celebrate EURAM achievements together.

I look forward to returning to scholarly life again and facing new challenges - with much anticipation and excitement.

However, I do hope that my two years’ service as EURAM President are well appreciated as my legacy to this worthy Community, and that you will remember me in a good way.

Thank you and Au revoir!

Luca Gnan, President
Welcome by the EURAM President-Elect

Collaboration appears to be one of the most relevant concepts which can contribute significantly to the well-being of the society. Believing that the future of management lies in a more globally connected and socially collaborative world, our conference themed “manageable cooperation” offers an excellent opportunity for generating stimulating debates and sharing views on new collaborative forms and practices of management. Given the contemporary state of events and challenges that different stakeholders encounter in organizations of all kinds, this theme is very timely and highly significant. It is known that organizations prioritising collaboration are more likely to attract employment and attain higher levels of profit. Furthermore, sharing economy emerges as a promising sector generating revenue from unused assets and leading to environmental and social benefits. There are numerous other forms of collaboration. We need to find ways to make them sustainable with positive outcomes for both business and society. We must reassess existing structures, processes and management practices and leave room for sustainable collaboration for a fair and inclusive treatment of all stakeholders and efficient and effective uses of valuable resources. Managing collaboration by advancing mutual respect, harmony and creativity may also help us move from an organisation-centred management perspective to a more human-centred one.

Therefore, during this conference we look forward to identifying the essentials of a strategy for ensuring that management scholars and practitioners all over the world can further enhance their impact on improving the well-being of society and can create different collaboration forms leading to a large scale value for all markets.

At this point I would like to express my gratitude to all those who have contributed to this conference; SIG chairs, track, DWG and symposia proponents, reviewers, authors, Conference Programme Committee, DEKON, hosting and partner universities, executive committee members, our executive officer and Local Organising Committee. Our conference chair and colleagues at the Local Organising Committee have shown a fantastic example of scientific expertise as well as dedication, and persistence. Even the tragic events in Paris could not interrupt their devoted efforts and they were able to proceed smoothly the next day. Their performance deserves our full admiration.

Our conference will provide us with the opportunity to experience stimulating days in the inspiring atmosphere of Paris and I hope we will figure out creative ways for managing collaboration!

Sibel Yamak, President -Elect
Welcome by the President of Université Paris- Est Créteil

Ladies and gentlemen participants at the EURAM Conference,

First let me welcome you all to UPEC for the EURAM Conference, now in its 16th year. That our university has been chosen to host such a prestigious event in the field of management and management science is both a great pleasure and a true mark of recognition.

The challenge of planning an international conference of this scale, inconceivable without the help and support of our partner academic institutions which I would like to thank here, encouraged all the organisers involved to embody the values of cooperation and scientific quality we hold in such high esteem. An international outlook, high level research, support for students to achieve success and employment, all values that underpin academic excellence at higher education level, have been promoted at UPEC for many years in the field of economic and business management by the Economic and Business Management Faculty, the Eiffel School of Management and the Management Research Institute, which are overseeing this 2016 edition of the EURAM Conference.

Each year, just under 5,000 students, be they under graduates or post graduates studying for a Master’s or PhD, undertaking initial education or continuous training, apprenticeships or e-learning programmes are educated in the subjects of economics, accounting, finance, management and marketing. The work they do advances research geared towards society’s big challenges.

The theme of the 2016 conference, "manageable cooperation" invites participants to explore cooperation management, an area all too frequently overlooked in favour of competition. However, the many benefits to be gleaned and the challenges faced in the field are worth our attention. How the conditions for its success are identified, organised collectively and implemented is an essential area of research.

I am confident that the 2016 EURAM Conference will be a forum for high level discussion and scientific initiatives on the topics chosen for this year’s programme.

I wish you all an excellent conference.

Professor Olivier Montagne
President of UPEC
Welcome by the Conference Chair

In this beginning of the 21st Century, we are creating and facing a formidable transformation fraught with extraordinary risks and opportunities. At the heart of this transformation reside a complex diversity of organisations and organised collective action. Management, as a science, an art form, a human and institutionalised practice, management in the broad sense of “conduct of collective action”, plays a major role in this transformation. Haven’t we for too long focused only on competition, while cooperation is at least as important and may be more difficult to manage? No naïve optimism, cooperation is hard to achieve: how could we ignore the conflicting interests, the power struggles, and the whole interplay of our human drives with the historical, institutional and cultural structuring of our habitus?

Have we, engaged management scholars, tried hard enough to develop a clear vision of the role WE should play as researchers and educators in contributing to sustainable development? Do we know which conditions allow universities and their members to participate in this movement? How can we act to promote such conditions? Let our conference, placed under the French motto “Liberté, égalité, fraternité” help us advance the procurement of Management knowledge as a Public Good and toward Management for more cooperation and innovation.

Through our three Labs, three keynote roundtables, 32 Symposia and Development Working Groups, through around tracks we are going to tackle these issues.

I wish to thank sincerely all those who have contributed to the organisation of our Conference. First, Paris - Est Créteil University that is hosting us. I feel very proud to be part of this community whose members try to conjugate scientific excellence and social inclusion. Thank you so much to the local organisation committee, our partners and Luisa Jaffé for their wonderful support. Thank you to our keynote speakers, LABs, Symposia and development working group panellists, thank you to all the chairs, thank you to our authors and reviewers who are nurturing what I hope will be a fruitful Conference.

With members in more than 70 countries, the International Leadership Association is the only global network that brings together leadership scholars and researchers, educators and students, coaches and consultants, public leaders and executives. Why does ILA bring people together? Because when we share our unique perspectives, experiences, and knowledge we come up with better, more integrated leadership thinking, practices, and solutions that can positively impact our complex global environment. The world needs better leadership and ILA’s mission of promoting a deeper understanding of leadership knowledge and practice for the greater good aims to make a difference.

Keynote Round Table I

June 1, 2016 (14:30 - 16:00 - Plenary Hall Amphi 7, next to the CROUS Restaurant)
Orchestrating the Future of Management Education and Research in Europe

Europe has a rich history of management education and its legacy has informed the development of major sectors elsewhere e.g., North America. Its growth in the last 40 years has been significant and management has become the largest part of higher education in some countries e.g., the U.K. Despite this, there has been much criticism about the role and contribution of B-Schools in modern society, especially in the aftermath of the global financial crisis, when much blame was laid at their doors. A few initiatives on “Responsible Management Research and Education” emerged after negative evaluation of the narrow and selfish research focus and of the questionable Education practices in the domain.
So, what of the future? Many scholars believe that we are at a transformational point and that any orchestration of the future of B-Schools should be conducted by ourselves as academicians and not forced upon us by external agencies. Do we play the fiddle as Rome burns?

Moderator/ Panellist: Peter McKiernan (Strathclyde Business School, UK)
Peter McKiernan is Professor of Management at the University of Strathclyde, Scotland
His main research focus is on how organisations learn about how their future might unfold and how they might prepare their current strategies to cope. He has been President of the British Academy of Management (BAM) and of the European Academy of Management (EURAM), where he co-founded the journal European Management Review.

Panellists:

Frédérique Alexandre-Bailly (ESCP Europe, France), is Professor of Management at ESCP Europe, associate dean for students inclusion, chair of the management department and the scientific director of INCLUDEE Research Center (Inclusion, Uniqueness and Diversity in Education and Enterprises). Her research is focused on three areas: autonomy and democracy at work, diversity management and higher education management.

John Bessant (University of Exeter Business School, UK) holds the Chair in Innovation and Entrepreneurship at Exeter University where he is also Research Director. His main research interests are: Management of discontinuous innovation; Sustainability and innovation; High involvement innovation.
Thomas Durand (CNAM, France), holds the Chair in Strategic Management at CNAM Paris where he is in charge of the Management - Innovation - Prospective Department. His researches focus mainly on Corporate Strategy, Technology and Innovation Management. In 2011, he co-edited Redesigning Management Education and Research - Challenging Proposals from European Scholars.

Anne-Wil Harzing (Middlesex University, UK) is Professor of International Management at Middlesex University. Her research's interests include international HRM, expatriate management, HQ-subsidiary relationships, cross-cultural management, transfer of HRM practices, the role of language in international business, the international research process, and the quality and impact of academic research.

Denise M. Rousseau (Carnegie Mellon University, US) is the H.J. Heinz II University Professor of Organizational Behavior and Public Policy at Carnegie Mellon University’s H. John Heinz III College and the Tepper School of Business. She is the faculty director of the Institute for Social Enterprise and Innovation and chair of Health Care Policy and Management program. She founded the “Evidence-Based Management Collaborative”, a network promoting evidence-informed organizational practices and decision making. She is recognized in particular for developing the theory of the psychological contract.
Keynote Round Table II

June 2, 2016 (14:00- 15:30 - Plenary Hall Amphi 7, next to the CROUS Restaurant)
Cooperating and Managing for Sustainable Development

In the run up to Paris COP21 in December 2015, several voluntary new corporate initiatives were announced to address climate change. COP21 itself relies primarily on voluntary national targets with only normative pressures for compliance. This panel will focus on the adequacy of existing CSR-style voluntary governance mechanisms and ‘deliberative democratic’ processes to address climate change and sustainable development more broadly. Cooperative governance mechanisms that engage multiple stakeholders are often set within profound asymmetric power relations and interests: Large businesses and Western industrialized countries tend to have greater influence, while the voices of labour, women, countries of the global South, and other interests represented by civil society organizations are often marginalized. Similarly, our approach to sustainable consumption currently appears to depend on business-led voluntary “sharing economy” platforms such as Uber and AirBnB.

Our panel will examine the challenges and possibilities of collaborative governance mechanisms to address the social, environmental and economic dimensions of sustainable development, and their relevance for different issues and national contexts.

Moderator/ Panellist: David L. Levy (University of Massachusetts, US)
David L. Levy is Professor of Management in the College of Management at UMass-Boston. David is Director of the Center for Sustainable Enterprise and Regional Competitiveness, whose mission is “to foster a transition to a clean, sustainable, and prosperous economy”.

Panellists:

Steffen Böhm (University of Exeter, UK) is Professor in Organisation & Sustainability and Director of the Sustainability & Circular Economy Research Cluster at University of Exeter Business School. He is focussing on the political economies and ecologies of the sustainability nexus;

Dima Jamali (American University of Beirut, Lebanon/ University of Southampton, UK) is Professor of Management and Kamal Shair Endowed Chair in Responsible Leadership in the Olayan School of Business, American University of Beirut. Her research and teaching revolve primarily around Corporate Social Responsibility and Social Entrepreneurship.
Innovation (be it technological, managerial or social) is now an important topic of management research and theory. In parallel, it is also a reflexive and critical issue about how new approaches or new methods emerge in the field. This roundtable organizes a conversation between these two perspectives. As a topic, the management of innovation has outlined new models of managing and organizing, as well as new forms of cooperation. Now, is the topic a simple subfield of general management theory or should it lead to a paradigm shift? History and research suggest that studying contemporary innovation requires, at least, rethinking major assumptions (social and cognitive ones) of management theory. Yet, paradigmatic changes in Management tend to follow different paths, depending especially on the level of rigidity of the professional structure of the domain; or on robust and convincing research designs. If innovation leads to a paradigmatic shift, what could be its academic trajectory? Can evidence-based research support such trajectory?

Moderator/Panellist: Armand Hatchuel (MINES ParisTech, France):
Armand Hatchuel is Professor at MinesParisTech-PSL Research University. His is co-head of the Design Theory and methods for innovation Chair at CGS (Center for management Science). His work has been about the theory of collective action in Social Sciences and the epistemology of Management. He has contributed with Pr Benoit Weil to Design theory (C-K theory) developing a model of creative rationality for Business and Innovation. He also works with Pr Blanche Segrestin to alternative theories of the Enterprise and Corporate Law.

Panellists:

Jan Dul (Rotterdam School of Management, Erasmus University, Netherlands) is a professor of technology and human factors at Rotterdam School of Management, Erasmus University (RSM). His research focuses on human factors (ergonomics) and, in particular, the interaction between people and the physical and social environment. His research contributes to the design of successful products and services, and the development of work environments for high performance. He is the Chair of the SIG Innovation of EURAM.

Maria Elmquist (University of Chalmers, Sweden) is Professor and the Head of the Department of Technology Management and Economics at Chalmers University. She also works at the division of Innovation and R&D Management and Center for Business Innovation (CBI), where she researches the management of innovation, innovation capabilities, organization of R&D and design activities. Her ongoing research includes projects on the development of innovative capabilities and on the use of design thinking in large companies.

Richard Whittington (University of Oxford, UK) is Professor of Strategic Management at Said Business School and Millman Fellow in Management at New College, Oxford. Richard is a leader in the field of Strategy-as-Practice research. Richard’s research is exploring the recent ‘opening’ of strategy, as it becomes more transparent internally and externally, and involves a widening range of people from inside and outside the organisation.

SIG 02: Corporate Governance (CoGo)

- Kick off: Room: 202, Building: Maison des LANGUES, Date: Wednesday 1 June, Hour: 10:50-12:20
  - As research into corporate governance has moved on from the principal-agent straitjacket, conceptual boundaries have become more permeable such that it is now almost impossible to identify an aspect of organizational life which is NOT in some way related to corporate governance! The UK’s Financial Reporting Council and other City organizations are currently focused on the concept of culture as the touchstone to achieve ‘good’ corporate governance. However, from an organization studies perspective, culture cannot be researched per se as it is ‘everywhere’ and the notion of ‘goodness’ implies a value judgment. The aim of this presentation is to consider the strengths and challenges of making sense, through both theory and practice, of the constitutive entanglement of corporate governance.
- Social event: Thursday 2 June Evening 19:30 Bistrot Vivienne, 4 Rue des Petits Champs, 75002 Paris

• Plenary: Room: 16, Building: FSGE, Date: Friday 3 June, Hour: 10:50-12:20
  - Panel: Post-colonialism, power and diversity

  The plenary will offer a global perspective on post-colonialism and diversity. It will highlight and challenge the power of colonial and neo-liberal knowledge that dominates much thinking in management and development. With the emergence of BRICS and other growing economies, there is a need to engage with the post-colonial and transnational landscape and consider alternatives to Western voices to critique and reform the political economy of inequality.

PROGRAMME
SIG 01: BUSINESS for SOCIETY (B4S)
Main meeting building: IAE

The Business for Society SIG is dedicated to research and educational programmes that analyse the conditions under which business can (or actually does) interact positively with its social and natural environment. The objective of our SIG is to bring together scholars from various fields of social sciences (management, law, sociology, economics, political science, education, social psychology, history, philosophy, engineering, etc.), while sharing a common interest in B4S projects. We try to build a strong community of engaged scholars by:

• Exploring ways and methods, of identifying actors, business models and contexts which allow organisations to contribute to sustainable development, and

• Fully grasping the ambiguities, contradictions as well as the potential for innovative and transformative practices of this approach.

SIG B4S Chairs:
Rémi Jardat (ISTEC - France) rjardat@istec.fr
Corinne Vercher (Université Paris 13 - France) corinne.vercher@wanadoo.fr
Jérôme Méric (Université de Poitiers - France) jmeric@iae.univ-poitiers.fr

SIG 02: CORPORATE GOVERNANCE (COGO)
Main meeting building: LANGUES

The corporate governance SIG welcomes studies exploring all aspects of antecedents and consequences of corporate governance and boards of directors. Contributions adopting a wide set of theoretical lenses and research methods are strongly encouraged as well as studies analysing corporate governance in different types of enterprises and institutional contexts, including different countries and regional cultures.

SIG Corporate Governance Chairs:
Alejandro Escriba (Universitat de València), alejandro.escriba@uv.es
Jonas Gabrielsson (Lund University), jonas.gabrielsson@circle.lu.se
Mariateresa Torchia (Witten Herdecke University), mariateresa.torchia@uni-wh.de Heike Mensi-Klarbach (Vienna University of Economics, Austria), hmensi@wu.ac.at Axel Walther (University of Witten/Herdecke), axel.walther@uni-wh.de

Corporate Governance SIG - ACTIVITIES:

• Kick Off: Wednesday 1 June, 10:50 - 12:20, Room 202, Maison des LANGUES

As research into corporate governance has moved on from the principal-agent straitjacket, conceptual boundaries have become more permeable such that it is now almost impossible to identify an aspect of organizational life which is NOT in some way related to corporate governance! The UK’s Financial Reporting Council and other City organizations are currently focused on the concept of culture as the touchstone to achieve ‘good’ corporate governance. However, from an organization studies perspective, culture cannot be researched per se as it is ‘everywhere’ and the notion of ‘goodness’ implies a value judgment. The aim of this presentation is to consider the strengths and challenges of making sense, through both theory and practice, of the constitutive entanglement of corporate governance.

• Social Event: Thursday 2 June Evening, 19:30, Bistrot Vivienne, 4 Rue des Petits Champs, 75002 Paris
  Please register as we only have limited space – first come first serve
  Heike.Mensi-Klarbach@wa.uni-hannover.de

• Wrap Up: Friday 2 June, Hour: 17:00 – 18:30, Maison des LANGUE, Room 404
  – Awards (Best Paper & Best Reviewer)
  – Track proposals

SIG 03: ENTREPRENEURSHIP (ENT)
Main meeting building: LANGUES

The purpose of the SIG Entrepreneurship is to develop an ongoing and constructive dialogue among entrepreneurship scholars to conduct research that is relevant for entrepreneurship theory and practice in the contemporary world. The SIG Entrepreneurship aims at promoting research and networking interests in individual and collaborative forms of entrepreneurship by providing a wide-ranging, engaged and internationally focused forum to discuss and develop research and practice in the field. We put a distinct focus on the key European feature - 'context matters' - why we try in all activities to promote and stimulate what 'European' might mean in any given context and any approach of entrepreneurship research.

SIG 04: FAMILY BUSINESS RESEARCH (FABR)
Main meeting building: LANGUES

The European Academy of Management with an ad-hoc Strategic Interest Group on “Family Business Research” aims to be the ideal opportunity to assess the conceptual development, empirical research, and future directions of the family business field within a broader community of European scholars of management. We envision this SIG as an international arena to attract contributions of both new scholars of the field and scholars from the established community in family business, that will provide new insights on topics that have received significant attention in the past, as well as we especially encourage scholars to undertake innovative papers and discussions of topics that have not received much attention but are important in the field.

Inequalities in organisation and societies are related to a myriad of different dimensions including gender, race, social-class, age, sexuality, religion, and disability. These inequalities not only reinforce social injustice but also encourage exploitation and underutilization of human capital by organizations and nations. Current debates in the area of gender, race, diversity, development and management research embraces inter alia social theory and inequality. This includes intersectionality and post colonialism, the extent to which globalization has facilitated the spread of western ideas (or not) around feminism, organization and management, and what feminism and broader social movements mean in diverse socio-cultural and geo-political contexts. In addition, the complexity and variety in human resources and management policies and institutional frameworks that address issues of social inequality. Within the Gender, Race, and Diversity in Organisations (GRDO) Strategic Interest Group (SIG) and Various tracks and sub-tracks organized by this SIG, we seek to analyse varying socio-demographic, cultural, and geo-political contexts and the implications for work organization, management, and human resource strategies. This incorporates critiques of gender, race, and diversity in a range of organizations, including transnational corporations, public and private sector organisations, NGOs, and international organizations. We value theoretically inspired papers based on leading social commentators and empirically based research. We encourage contributions from scholars from a broad range of disciplines: management, economics, psychology, women’s/ men’s/ gender studies, geography, sociology, and development. We welcome conceptual and empirical papers and studies of single countries and comparative research.

Gender, Race, and Diversity in Organizations SIG – ACTIVITIES:

- Plenary: Friday 3 June, 10:50-12:20, FSEG Building, Room 16

  - Panel: Post- colonialism, power and diversity

    The plenary will offer a global perspective on post-colonialism and diversity. It will highlight and challenge the power of colonial and neo-liberal knowledge that dominates much thinking in management and development. With the emergence of BRICS and other growing economies, there is a need to engage with the post-colonial and transnational landscape and consider alternatives to Western voices to critique and reform the political economy of inequality.

SIG 06: INNOVATION (INNO)
Main meeting building: FSEG

The Strategic Interest Group (SIG) Innovation at the European Academy of Management (EURAM) aims to:
· facilitate the continued evolution of an open, inclusive, international and cross-cultural EURAM community of engaged scholars,
· support scholars in designing, producing and disseminating higher quality and impactful research at each stage of their career,
· influence the development of management education,
· provide platforms and facilitate networks for the dialogue between scholars, reflective practitioners, and policy makers.
The Goal of SIG Innovation is to create an open “learning climate” for all members (juniors and seniors) to reach the goals of EURAM in the field of innovation.

The Public and Non-Profit Management SIG aims at providing an authoritative and internationally focused forum to discuss major developments in the area of governance and management of public interest. Such focus allows embracing all organizations that operate for the benefit of the community, be they public or private. Key issues include network management, performance management, organization and HRM, social innovation, social responsibility, accounting and accountability, marketing and fundraising, leadership. Considering the specific theme of the 2016 Conference, we especially welcome paper proposals focusing on collaborative governance (networks and co-production), social innovation, management of hybrid organizations and the creation of public value at the intersection between public and private domains.

SIG 12: RESEARCH METHODS AND RESEARCH PRACTICE (RM&RP)
Main meeting building: LANGUES

The Research Methods and Research Practice (RM&RP) strategic interest group (SIG) exists to promote debates - and stimulate innovation - around all aspects of academic research, from its conception through to its execution and dissemination. The RM&RP SIG seeks to draw understanding about research methods and research practice from all business and management disciplines including Accounting, Computer Science, Entrepreneurship, Finance, Human Resource Management, Learning and Development, Marketing, Operations Management, Organizational Behaviour, Strategy, and Systems Management. By sharing novel approaches and advancing knowledge about the usefulness of different methods and the facilitators of - and constraints on - the use of those methods in the research and broader environment, it seeks to enable researchers to improve the design and execution of their research and to find ways of disseminating the findings of that research to all parts of the broader community who might be affected by that research and have an interest in it. The RM&RP SIG aims to stimulate debate in a supportive environment in which all levels of academic from doctoral students through to senior professors feel at home.

The RM&RP SIG's objective is to promote understanding across national borders and to draw strength from the diversity of research approaches that exist across Europe and beyond. It seeks to generate continuous debate between conferences through its use of a range of different media including electronic newsletters and a presence on the World Wide Web. The RM&RP SIG celebrates the intellectual diversity that exists both within and outside of Europe and it seeks to use that diversity to help facilitate advancement in research methods, research practice, and the knowledge that stems from those methods and practice.

SIG 13: STRATEGIC MANAGEMENT (SM)

Main meeting building: FSEG

The Strategic Management Special Interest Group (SIG) is devoted to promoting state of the art Strategic thinking by encouraging dialogue along several interrelated lines of inquiry crucial for increasing scholarly and managerial understanding regarding strategic choice, competitive advantage, adaptation, and long-term performance and survival. The SIG was launched at the EURAM 2010 conference in Rome. Since then the SIG has gone from strength to strength. We are committed to each year bring together scholars from all around the world to engage in the development and exchange of high-quality research ideas with the potential to fertilize and drive the future directions of scholarly and practitioner strategic thinking alike. Empirical, conceptual, and practitioner-oriented papers from a plurality of theoretical perspectives, units of analyses, contexts, and research designs are warmly welcomed. We in particular encourage papers integrating multiple theoretical lenses and/or methodological approaches. All submitted papers have been reviewed on a double-blind basis by at least two reviewers.

We are not a Special Interest Group but a temporary Group welcoming in 2016 tracks, symposia, development working groups or papers that did not find a home in one of our 13 SIGs or in one of our various tracks but that are nonetheless presenting a strong interest for the future of management research. Those tracks, symposia, development working groups or papers may well be the seeds of new developments for our inclusive Euram community. We propose in this “SIG” several emerging tracks, and one general track where you can submit papers that do not fit in proposed tracks.

SIG Conference General Track Chairs:
Anne - Catherine Moquet, Université Paris Est- Créteil, anne-catherine.moquet@u-pec.fr
Frédérique Alexandre-Bailly, ESCP Europe, alexandre-bailly@escpeurope.eu

Matilde Morales-raya UNIVERSITY OF GRANADA
Inmaculada Martín-tapia UNIVERSITY OF GRANADA
Natalia Ortín-de-mandojana UNIVERSITY OF BALEARIC ISLANDS
Original presentation by reintroducing subjective and sensory experience in organizational life, researches in organizational aesthetics have then opened new ways in which to conceptualize the dynamic relation between form and matter in organizations, the role of aesthetic knowledge and objects in organizational practices, or, more recently, the processes of “formativeness”, a concept which “comes from aesthetic philosophy and [which] denotes the process by which phenomena (for instance an object or a work of art) acquire form within working practices” (Gherardi & Perrotta, 2013, p.1.). Nevertheless, while such focus on form, matter, processes and practices, echoes other research works on processes, objects and artifacts, it seems that the relationships between these various traditions need to be further investigated. To gain insight into this viewpoint, this symposium wants to bring scholars together to engage in questions related to aesthetic, forms, processes, objects and artifacts. Could these notions be articulated despite different traditions? Is this an impossible task or are new notions necessary?

Sym 02 - Art, Entrepreneurship and Resistance - Thursday 2 June, 16:30-18:00, Langues Building - Room 301 - (Co-sponsored by the SIGs Business for Society and Entrepreneurship) - Birgit Helene Jevnaker - birgit.h.jevnaker@bi.no

This symposium will discuss and reflect on the practices and possibilities - what could happen but also what tend not to happen - in managing when looking at art, entrepreneurship and resistance. Grounded in live encounters in multidisciplinary practices and related philosophizing, we address the human conditions, actions, and fallacies of managing from art, entrepreneurship and resistance perspectives. We will attend to actual practices in individuated and collective performing generally, including art and creative industries, regarded as both an entrepreneurial endeavour and a form of resistance.

Sym 04 - Coaching and Collaboration: Pleonasm or Oxymoron? - Thursday 2 June, 9:00- 10:30, IAE Building - Room 402 - (Co-sponsored by the SIGs Business for Society and Organizational Behaviour) - Pauline Fatien-Diochon - pauline.fatien@menlo.edu

As far as collaboration goes, coaching is generating a lot of noise: excitement from the positivist side that portrays coaching as a renewed support for cooperation in organizations; defiance from the most critical that identify the practice with a new tool for compliance and soft domination. Given this intrinsic ambiguity, our panel of prominent international coaching scholars and practitioners will examine the nature of cooperation sustained by and existing within different forms of coaching in organizations, from external coaching to managerial coaching.

Sym 05 - Collective Action, Commons and the Firm: Interdisciplinary Perspectives - Thursday 2 June, 9:00- 10:30, IAE Building - Room 301 (Sponsored by the SIG Business for Society) - Yuri Biondi - yuri.biondi@gmail.com

Corporate groups and their web of socio-economic and financial relationships are today the dominant form of industrial organisation. They raise overwhelming issues and concerns for both society and nature within which they operate, and their stakeholders (including shareholders): Why do corporate groups exist? How do they operate in economy and society? Which interests should they serve? What are their responsibilities towards stakeholders and the general interest? How should they being controlled and made accountable to their constituencies? This symposium aims to address these fundamental questions by looking at industrial firms and groups as modes of collective action involving commonalities which require specific attention and design for management, governance and regulation.
This Symposium will deal with management of cooperation and conflict from the perspectives of philosophy of Management. We will present different philosophical concepts and theories of cooperation and relate them to one another. The main issue is also how to develop new concepts of cooperation in order to deal with conflict and manage cooperation. With this in mind we will look at the concept of cooperation in the perspective of recent and modern theories of philosophy of management. This implies asking questions of cooperation and conflict in relation to important management theories like scientific management, game theory, human relations management, stakeholder theory, post-structuralist management theory and other philosophical management concepts of cooperation.

This symposium discusses the role of different stakeholders and variety of collaboration heuristics in entrepreneurship. It takes a broad perspective, addressing research settings from start-ups and SMEs to established firms. Concepts like effectuation, gift giving, or lean start-up stress the necessity of early interaction with stakeholders and suggest processes for early collaboration. Also, concepts at the organizational level emphasize the idea of open innovation and collective action within and beyond organizational borders. Together with digitalization and globalization, these trends have created an intense discussion about a collaborative and sharing economy. In this context, there is a growing need to further our understanding of collaborative interactions, and more so in the entrepreneurial arena.

The growing pace of globalization and the outbreak of financial crises and scandals have revived a longstanding debate on the importance of global and corporate governance as well as social, political and economic innovation. Governance field studies the principles, processes, and systems by which organizations and institutions are governed. Social innovation refers to the processes and systems of change in social relations as well as the design and development of goods and services in response to market shortcomings. By investigating the principles, components and objectives of social innovation and good governance, this symposium seeks to stimulate debate on the multiple dimensions of governance and social innovation and the boundaries of sustainable cooperation in an increasingly complex business environment.

Policymakers and academics agree to say that patient capital is required to avoid short term pressure by financial investors on non-financials corporations (NFCs). Despite of this consensus, frontiers of patient capital are rarely clearly defined while it is now acknowledge that it is the prerequisite of a sustainable long term growth. The aim of this symposium is to identify the barriers of long term investment in accounting and regulation of pension funds and insurance companies on the one hand, and in the behaviour of these institutional investors on the other hand.
Sym 10 - Making history matter for management students - Thursday 2 June, 16:30- 18:00, IAE Building - Amphi B- (Sponsored by the General Conference) - Matthias Kipping- mkipping@schulich.yorku.ca

Do you believe that history matters? That the renewed interest in history among management scholars should also find its way into the classroom? And that history might help students to become more rounded, long-term oriented managers? This symposium presents examples of the innovative ways in which history is being imparted at three business schools. We will then invite the audience to share their experiences and discuss how to make history attractive to management students and how to overcome possible roadblocks in the (re-)integration of history into management education.

Sym 11 - Mergers and acquisitions: bridging substantive, methodological and conceptual conversations- Thursday 2 June, 9:00- 10:30, FSEG Building - Room 307- (Co-sponsored by the SIGs Strategic Management and Organizational Behaviour) - Olimpia Meglio - meglio@unisannio.it

Mergers and acquisitions attract considerable attention from scholars and practitioners alike. Yet, despite the bulk of research, we seem to know very little about this complex phenomenon. This symposium aims at proposing a different journey into M&As by focusing on issues rather than on functional perspectives to rejuvenate often taken for granted concepts in M&A studies. A range of panellists exploring a variety of M&A issues employing a variety of research methods, in different research settings across the globe offers the potential for a more holistic view of M&A by considering both differences and areas of agreement.

Sym 13 - Leveraging cooperation for more gender equality in management- Wednesday 1 June, 10:50 - 12:20, FSEG Building - Room 15 - (Sponsored by the SIG Gender, Race and Diversity in Organisations)- Mounia Utzeri - mounia.utzeri@yahoo.fr

Whilst there has been appreciable progress in some areas of gender equality, limited progress has been achieved or even stopped in many other fields, in particular in senior management jobs, top wage earners, senior and influential (clout) positions and corporate directorships. Considerable attention has been paid to the reasons for women's underrepresentation in management. To go beyond the simple description of this bulk of hindrances to gender equality in employment, the symposium intends to shift the focus to alternative, innovative and creative systems of cooperation. The scope of the symposium is to discuss several forms cooperation which can bear within and outside organisational boundaries. We are searching for the old and new agents of these emergent types of cooperation, encompassing different borders, cultures and economic sectors.

Sym 14 - Positive and Negative Organizational Studies- Thursday 2 June, 9:00- 10:30, IAE Building - Room 408 (Sponsored by the SIG Business for Society) - Miguel Pereira Lope - mplopes@iscsp.ulisboa.pt

The previous decade has witnessed a growing interest in the topic of “Positive Organizational Studies”. EURAM and AOM Conferences have reflected that trend by convening symposia on topics related to the study of positive issues in organizations, such as gratitude, positive emotions, positive leadership or positive psychological capital. However, negative topics such as mobbing, negative emotions, entrenchment, machiavelism, and others are now raising interest from academics. In addition, several studies are now being publish that reflect another interesting issue, that of the interplay between negative and positive in organizations and workplaces. As such, the goal of this symposium is to create the academic platform to critically analyze positive and negative organizational studies and the possibilities of studying their joint effects in a more comprehensible perspective.
In practice, entrepreneurship and project management show clear convergences: entrepreneurs establish and grow their firms as temporary endeavours. Big organizations expect entrepreneurial spirit in various kinds of projects. Entrepreneurship and project management are both related to opportunities, innovation, learning processes, and coping with risk and uncertainty. However, in research, the development of these two fields has been, up to now, largely parallel and unrelated tracks. The purpose of this symposium is to integrate the segregated communities and to stimulate debates and cross-disciplinary learning on the conceptual, methodological, and pragmatic level between researchers in project organizing and entrepreneurship.

Strategic followership, a bottom-up approach to value-creation, is an emerging area that complements strategic leadership. In this era of bad (unethical and ineffectual) leadership by executives, strategic followership represents the counteractive responses that act to restore or enhance relational value (i.e., value to stakeholders in the relational interface). In this symposium, the panel members explore topics that relate to the major dimensions of strategic followership. In this symposium, five researches that examine different elements of strategic followership are discussed: Strategic Role Systems: Strategic Management Perspectives; Does your thinking style moderate your decisions and strategic behaviours; A Multidimensional scale to measure Strategic Followership; Understanding leaders through followers: active and passive followership.

This symposium seeks to advance our understanding of what drives strategic renewal in service firms. We aim at developing a more integrative and comprehensive conversation about the antecedents, characteristics, and output of strategic renewal in service firms by means of non-technological innovations. We draw here on the finer categorization of non-technological innovation as one that helps renewal within the service firm's core business model and internal processes. By combining innovation research with the strategy domain, strategic renewal in the service industry aims at improving the critical review and integration of theories of service transformation, advancing our understanding of the complexity and mechanisms of non-technological innovation in a variety of organizational levels (industry, firm, team, and individual), and combining approaches and methods (quantitative and/or qualitative).
Sym 20 - Toward Responsible practices in the organizations: the role of affinity groups, diversity networks and management of trust Thursday 2 June, 9:00- 10:30, FSEG Building - Amphi 103 - Joan Robinson - (Co-sponsored by the SIGs Business for Society and Gender, Race and Diversity in Organisations) - Maria Giuseppina Bruna - margie.bruna@gmail.com

Western countries are bogged down in economic instability and sluggish growth, with serious social implications, the confidence crisis is systemic, deep and lasting. As a key driver of wealth creation, secondary socialization and social regulation, labour feeds-up the being-in-society. Thus, recreating the conditions of trust in the organizational field is: a political urgency (which questions the effectiveness and efficiency of social links and the foundations of living together), a categorical imperative (which invites reconsidering the relationship with Self, the Others and the groups), a strategic tool (through a renewal of the confidence cycle, gathering the company and its employees through a “gift of trust” granted by the management, appreciated as a “Pascal’s wager” and a strategic investment), a performance-key (development of “self-confidence”, “hetero-confidence” and stimulation of creative cooperation). The development of affinity groups and pro-diversity networks contribute to redefining the phenomenology, the ways and the spaces of socialization and cooperation at work. They participate into the “design” a new responsible management of cooperation and mending the confidence pact. Our symposium will address, through a systemic and multi-dimensional perspective, the dissemination of responsible practices, through the development of diversity networks, affinity-based socialization and management of trust into the companies.
Sustainability is a global challenge that crosses many boundaries and meeting the challenge requires effective collaboration amongst diverse stakeholders, including scholars from different disciplines, businesses that also compete with each other, governments founded on differing ideologies, non-profit organizations, human rights organizations, etc. The complexity of the sustainability challenge makes effective collaborating imperative. To facilitate such collaborating, this DWG offers a forum for interested parties to establish new connections that will facilitate future research efforts and share practical knowledge (e.g., tools for collaboration, case examples of effective collaborations) for managing collaborations amongst diverse stakeholders with a shared interest in sustainability.

The competence of health service managers (HSM) is critical for healthcare reform and efficient healthcare delivery. Competence is also an essential concept for accrediting academic programs that provide health management education and for professional organisations that credential HSMs. Research defining and measuring management competence of HSMs has been published internationally. This DWG will provide a platform for knowledge sharing and exploring collaboration to advance global research. The lack of empirical evidence linking management competence with better delivery outcomes limits the level of interest and investment in competency research. Formulating a research agenda on this topic will be the second focus of the DWG.

During the last decades tremendous turbulences have been shaking our economy, partly to its very foundations. There is agreement that organization studies need to further investigate the role of organizations and their actors in coping with such turbulences as environments become increasingly volatile. This DWG aims to explore how managers deal with uncertainty and unknownness, and which strategies and heuristics they use to reduce ambiguity and to venture into the unknown and the emergent. The purpose of the DWG is to bring together practitioners’ and academics’ views and stimulate discussions and advancement on this topic. Based on a kick-off presentation there will be a world café and round table discussions that facilitate knowledge exchange. Finally there will be a closing round where concrete theory based practical implications are developed.

In the field of innovation research and practice, learning and development are of growing importance. We see a particular benefit in participatory processes applying “art-based mediation” and “playful modeling” (e.g. drama, building blocks, cardboard, drawing, performance art, music) to integrate diverse stakeholder groups. With the DWG we intend to provide a discursive frame where participants can bring in, experience, reflect and discuss art-based mediation and playful modeling in interactive round table sessions. We will contribute to the question of future learning and development in professional and university contexts using art based mediation and playful modeling.
The aim of this DWG is to set a panel with Scholars and Practitioners to discuss how an appropriate entrepreneurship culture could be developed first, inside an organization and second, outside the organization vis-à-vis its ecosystem. Considering the importance of innovation on a company's success, it is important to develop and optimize the entrepreneurial skills and competencies of employees. Entrepreneurs are integrators that combine the talents of technical and marketing elements, establishing new products, processes and services. Our aim is to gather insights on how cultural settings may create the favorable context for sustainable entrepreneurship and innovation practices. Indeed, cultural aspects, such as the enforcement of power, may influence innovation and entrepreneurship, shaping the extent to which they emerge and unfold. To address this issue we intend to explore the role of culture at the individual, organizational and institutional level within the context of entrepreneurship and its practice.

Despite its intensified practical relevance employer branding remains a relatively under-researched management tool and practice (Edwards & Edwards, 2013; App et al, 2012; Lievens et al, 2007). Given its interdisciplinary character employer branding has great potential for a variety of theoretical perspectives. Within this Development Working Group we are focusing on three different research themes: (1) Sustainability and employer branding, (2) Conceptualizing employer branding and (3) Ownership of employer branding. The objective of this DWG is to deepen our understanding of and create new vistas on employer branding and explore its potential to be or to become a meaningful tool to foster positive employment experiences.

In line with the theme “Manageable Cooperation?” we propose a development working group on new collaborative practices and spaces for business development. Scholars and practitioners will discuss about new places of work like coworking spaces, fablabs, start-up accelerators, innovation labs... whatever they are independent, academic, public, or corporate entities. Such workspaces recently emerged to support more mobile and flexible ways of working, but their impact on occupants has received few exploration yet in the literature. Our objective is to propose new avenues of research on the topic, and connect with a community of researchers that would engage in such issues. A visit of the Descartes FabLab will also be proposed.

This Development Working Group –Future and relevance of academic work: role of impactful and engaged scholarship- is an opportunity to bring together scholars with diverse perspectives on impactful and engaged scholarship and future relevance of academic work in order to exchange innovative approaches to practice, policy and research in the field. Defining impact broadly as demonstrable contribution that excellent research makes to society and economy, this DWG aims to generate context-specific understanding of the notion of impact; to engage with key stakeholders in shaping the future agenda of impactful research; and to focus on how to support an academic career espoused with humanistic, social and developmental values.
Clearly, a third way has recently emerged in the social and solidarity economy (SSE): companies that hybridize different kinds of management models. New practices are developing that tackle both resistance to management tools and trivialization by management tools by combining practical concern for professionalization and control by overall performance. This approach is controversial in SSE because activist stakeholders in the field still view management, at worst, as taboo; at best, as “dangerous”. Yet, necessarily, management cannot be done away with; indeed, it permeates the whole field. We aim to conduct comparative discussions on the cases at hand and bring out issues that might turn into an international research endeavor supplementing the “Alternative Control of Collective Interest Cooperative Companies” project.

Firms encounter many mutations regarding the management of innovation: open innovation, business model innovation, platforms and ecosystems, exploration and experimentation, etc. This imperative translates directly in a call for education in preparing students to these mutations. There has been much experimentation on alternative ways to teach the innovation process lately. This DWG will bring together faculty engaged in designing and delivering courses on the innovation process with the intent to discuss current challenges and lessons to share.

While acts of seemingly altruistic behaviour are not disputed, the claim that altruism does not exist has a long tradition in many areas of biological, economic, political and philosophical thought. We provide the opportunity for complex and challenging debate, as we attempt to conceptualise the difficult to define concept of ‘altruism’ and move on to the operationalisation of this knotty concept. Participants will be invited to be involved in and assess individual, dyadic and focus group interview techniques, and questionnaires and experimental measures, to determine their benefits, identify what key challenges are raised, and consider their iterative role in conceptualisation.

Leaders of today’s non-for-profit organisations face several challenges in terms of growth, development and learning; additionally, they are faced with increased competition for shrinking pools of funding as well as from for-profits who offer a similar range of services and products. The need to search for ways to address these challenges and to nurture talent and develop future leaders to rise to such challenges is urgent. The pursuit of leadership models and approaches that would address such complex needs within the third sector has led to various attempts to transfer current leadership models from the for-profit context. The literature on leadership models and approaches is dominated by studies of the for-profit sector and there are much fewer systematic studies of leadership in the not-for-profit sector or social enterprise contexts. This DWG aims to address this gap. The overarching questions it seeks to address concern the practice of leadership in the not-for-profit sector, SE and the nature of its distinctiveness (if any) as well as the lessons that can be drawn from these experiences for furthering leadership scholarship.
This Development Working Group - Managing Transnationalisation in Television - is an invitation to scholars who usually work with transnationalisation within their distinct fields of expertise to meet at EURAM Paris to collaborate across disciplines on management challenges arising from the transnationalisation of an organizational and geographical diverse media industry. The purpose is to informally discuss and compare the challenges arising from transnationalisation across fields of expertise, to identify alternative views, and to establish joint areas of interests or future collaboration and cooperation.

Open laboratories for innovation and co-creation are a recent trend: Firms and research institutions open up new public spaces for ideation, development, prototyping and testing of innovations with "unobvious others" (Piller & Wielens 2013). Examples range from Fraunhofer’s JOSEPHS and professional industrial open lab spaces to living labs, research-oriented maker spaces and fab labs where everyone is allowed to contribute (Fritzsche & Moeslein 2015). In this DWG, we will look at their methodological implications for scientific research. Together with academics, businesses and co-creators, we will explore the potential and pitfalls of such novel spaces as platforms for collaborative management research.

Agent-based simulation models provide a means to analyze and to understand the functioning of complex socio-economic systems, which often consist of many interacting entities with non-linear and stochastic interactions. In these models agents may be individuals or organizations, characterized by different properties such as objectives, values, capabilities, resources. Actors may also have an ability to learn. The objective of the DWG is to discuss use of agent-based simulation models as a research method in organizational and management research; and to apply agent-based simulation in the context of complex inter-organizational project networks.

Transfer of knowledge from universities to society has been gaining increasing importance over the past decades. In addition, decreasing public funds and accelerating costs of research create pressure on universities to generate alternative sources of income. As a consequence, transfer, next to research and teaching, has become a third mission of universities. The purpose of the DWG is to provide a unique European platform for research on the entrepreneurial university. The focus will be on research dealing with incentive and governance structures, indicators, regional networks, and policies. The DWG will focus on prominent research topics and compare alternative research methods.
